

Time flies when you're having fun! And the summer certainly flew by for the TYO team in Nablus, Lebanon, and DC! We've pulled together some of our news from August to share with you, including guest blogs, women's equality day celebrations, intern comic books, and youth leadership projects. What lies ahead? We'll be at the Clinton Global Initiative Annual Meeting in September. Follow us on Twitter for the latest and get in touch if you are there as well. Starting mid-September look out for our back-to-school like drive on Facebook. For one month one like = one dollar! We'll also be planning some fun get togethers and campaigns as 2012 comes to close. Enjoy the last bit of summer and stay tuned!

The TYO Team

This month, We celebrated Women's Equality Day, Nadine shared three lessons learned from women entrepreneurs in Lebanon, and Samin's article about the Women's Group was published by PeacexPeace.org.

We bid fairwell to six fabulous interns in Nablus and two amazing interns in McLean. Thank you all for your contributions and hard work this summer. Did you catch the triumphant return of The Interns comic?

We checked in with all three of the YALLA youth leaders, including Rakan's tourism project (feat. the photo above), Wa'lla's kids park, and Roula and Dima's anti-junk food campaign.

TYO likes to be active on all fronts, from the ground in Palestine to the world wide web! To get some advice on social media practices and how we can best apply it to philanthropy in Palestine, we sat down with Craig Newmark, founder of craigslist and craigconnects, to get some ideas.
